BOYS' SCOUT MOVEMENT ACTIVE IN WETASKIWIN

BIG RALLY HELD AND GOOD DISPLAY OF EXERCISES AND FIRST AID EXHIBITION. SHORT REVIEW OF WORK ACCOM-PLISHED SINCE ORGANIZATION. PRESENT OFFICERS.

The present history of Scouting in Wetaskiwin dates back to 1918, at which time Mr. Morritt had charge of the work. This troop met in the schoolroom of Knox church, and when Mr. Morritt left, Wetaskiwin in April of 1918, the duties of Scoutmaster were taken over by Mr. J. M. Pritchard.

The second troop was organized in the spring of 1919, by Mr. A. L. Harkness, with Mr. Griffiths as Scoutmaster. With the organization of the second troop, the troops became known as the 1st Troop, the 2nd Troop, Knox Scouts, and the 2nd Wetaskiwin Troop, (Immanuel Church Scouts).

In 1920 the 1st Wetaskiwin Troop was organized by Mr. James, who was assisted by Mr. J. M. Pritchard. The 1st Troop was in camp at Pigeon Lake in 1919, and the 2nd Troop in both 1919 and 1920. A team from the 1st Troop, under the instruction of Mr. J. M. Pritchard, was successful in winning the Edmonton Junior First Aid Shield in 1920. Both troops have teams entered for this competition this year.

GOLF COURSE HAS BEEN SECURED

At last Wetaskiwin is to have a course—every success to the club and its promoters.

We learn that a most suitable plot of land has been rented and that several golfers have gone over the course and pronounced most favorably upon it. Preparations to put the turf in shape have already commenced.

It is hoped that the ladies of Wetaskiwin and district, as well as the men, will give the club every support, as we all know that no club is complete without the fair sex.

There will be no canvassing for donations, as the scheme will be financed by the men promoting it. As the benefits of a golf course to a city are very great, let us all help and learn to play the fascinating game of golf.

We are informed from a reliable source that one of our best business men is willing to supply golf clubs and accessories at cost for the first season.

With such inducements to learn the game of the millionaires, let us not be backward in joining the club and assuring its success.

TURNING DOWN BUSINESS AGAIN

We have again been asked to accept advertising for the T. The statement is made in this letter that 140 weekly newspapers have accepted this business, and that the T. Eaton Co. is the largest advertiser in the world.

PROVINCE OFFERS FULL GUARANTEE OF BONDS

BILL TO AMEND LIQUOR ACT NOW BEFORE LEGISLATURE. HIGHER TAX FOR UNEARNED INCREMENT. SOUNDTEST BUSINESS METHODS TO BE ADOPTED BY PREMIER. ALL PROVINCIAL OFFICERS TO ISSUE FIREARMS PERMITS.

(From Legislature Press Gallery)

Edmonton, April 12.—Eight weeks ago, today the session of the legislature in the new jury act, from the outlook, all this week, and still another, will be required to clear the decks of business.

Monday afternoon Hon. J. R. Boyle, attorney-general, introduced the long expected bill to amend the liquor act, this being given first reading. It is expected that the bill will come up for second reading Wednesday or Thursday this week, when the whole question will come up for debate. While there is the almost sure respect for the liquor act in this bill, it is expected that the government recommendations will be for the "tightening up" of the present regulations regarding the number of dispensaries which may be issued by doctors and the sales of drug stores. Possibly also the quantity allowed may be reduced.

A proposal to impose a higher tax than the existing five per cent, on unearned increment values attaching to government guaranteed irrigation and drainage districts was brought up by discussed Saturday, and it is possible that there will be some provision for a higher tax being placed on land which will directly benefit by the provincial guarantee when sold by the owner in excess of the original value plus the cost of irrigation or drainage improvements.

In amending the municipal districts seal act Monday, it was provided that in no case are the total assessments to exceed $900 a lot, with $100 for seal and $800 for seal allowed this year. The consent of registered owners will have to be obtained in each case such advances are provided.

Friday the house gave assent to two of the outstanding bills of the session, when bills providing full bond guarantees from the province of drainage districts and also irrigation projects were advanced through second reading. A. F. Ewing, West Edmonton, was so concerned over the possibility of the government withdrawing from the guarantee policies, that in advocating against political advantages being taken he made a first class political speech.

The Premier, Mr. Stewart, in his remarks at least, there would be nothing but the soundest business methods followed with both the drainage and irrigation projects, for he never had been strong for partisanship in any sense, and certainly where the credit of the province was vitally involved partisan politics were not to be allowed to interfere with and minimize the effectiveness of the government's responsibility.

It was pointed out that each drainage and irrigation district, after being formed in the regular way, would be subjected to full investigation by government engineers, and after the scheme in each case was approved and the legislature had authorized the guarantee, that the government would take full responsibility for disposing of the bonds and carrying out the construction work. Under the plan the bill to guarantee the $5,000,000 worth of bonds of the Lethbridge North Irrigation project was given second reading by Premier Stewart.

He explained that he had been strongly opposed to the province fully guaranteeing underbids of this nature because of the tremendous obligations and responsibilities involved, and during last year every effort had been made to make a partial guarantee scheme in the case of the Lethbridge North Irrigation project, but as it was deemed necessary to apply the same guarantee to drainage schemes, Saskatchewan already providing full guarantee for these projects. S. G. Tobin, Le-due, H. J. Montgomery, Wetaskiwin, Hon. J. R. Boyle, and others from the government benches very strongly supported the drainage guarantee bill, stating that the advantage of drainage in the north would be inestimable value, as well as in reclaiming farmlands, but in enabling highways work to be projected. Mr. Boyle was sure the benefit to highways alone in many cases would be sufficient to pay for the amount of guarantee involved.

One night session during the last week saw a battle royal over the provision in the new jury act for the attorney general enabling women to serve as jurors. Dr. Stewart led the attack on the proposal, but was defeated largely because of the majority of the government benches, it being decided women should be called upon to serve as jurors but only on written consent. Mrs. McInnes and Mrs. Price, lady members, both supported another amendment of Dr. Stewart's making it compulsory for all women to serve, but this also was lost, by the government majority largely.

General protest was registered in the house Saturday against the Dominion regulations requiring all persons to obtain a permit for having firearms in their possession. It was finally decided on recommendation of the government, that practically all provincial officials, including those of the courts, police, game guards, post-riders, and others, be empowered to issue these permits, although the protest was directed against this was a "barbecue" on the Dominion regulations by making it so easy to obtain permits. Another issue was raised when certain members of the opposition objected to the private children's season being opened for the entire month of October with of the main line of the C.P.R. as proposed in committee. It was finally decided that the season remain at two weeks with the ball field reduced from 100 to 50.

"Bills providing for advances for seed grain for the private children's season requiring relief, were given final reading.

It is evident that the scheme of provincial guarantee of drainage and irrigation projects brought into effect for the next provincial election at least if the eventual recommendation of the special committee of eighteen ends the legislature on this question. Two meetings have been held by the committee with, on tangible results, excepting that there has been evidence a growing feeling that the scheme could not be applied with any degree of success in rural constituencies of the province.

WEDDINGS

GROVES-WATSON

A very pretty and popular wedding took place at the home of the groom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. Groves, north of the city, Thursday evening last at seven o'clock, when Miss Agnes C., eldest daughter of Mr. Jas. S. Watson, was united in the holy bonds of matrimony to Mr. Walter E. Groves.

Miss Janet Watson, sister of the bride, was the bridesmaid, and Mr. Robert Groves, brother of the groom, performed the duties of groomsmen. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. M. Pritchard. About twenty of the relatives and most intimate friends were present to witness the important ceremony.

The bride was beautifully attired in a blue serge suit, with queen hat, and carried a bouquet of bridal roses.

After the ceremony was the usual congratulations, the happy gathering sat down to a sumptuous wedding supper. The bride was the recipient of a number of handsome and useful presents, attesting the high esteem in which the bride and groom are held by their host of friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Groves are taking up housekeeping in a cottage on Andrews street.

We join in extending the heartiest congratulations, wishing Mr. and Mrs. Groves a long, happy and prosperous journey through life.

Mr. and Mrs. Mel Jevon and family have gone to Banff, where they intend spending the summer.

THE PAGEANT

The entertainment to be given in the costume of India, China, Japan, Africa and other countries. The pageant of the Spirit of Childhood is being looked forward to with interest by the people of the city. The purpose of the pageant is to portray the ultimate triumph of righteousness, the final triumph of Jesus, the Christ, over Ignorance, Superstition and Fear. The Spirit of Childhood seeks freedom and happiness for earth's little children. This part is very effectively taken by Miss Mace, who in the opening scene personifies before a grandiose shrine from Japan. At different times there appear on the stage the three dark spirits, also women and children from India, China, Japan, Africa and other countries. The pageant assures the Spirit of Childhood that she has told Canada about the sorrows of earth's children, and Canada declares that it is the purpose of the women of her fair land to tell the story of Jesus to every little child in all the world.

The price of the tickets is only 25c, and it is hoped that the efforts of the young ladies will be rewarded by a full house.

Organization work for the Red Cross "Membership Week" which is to take place from June 5th to 12th, is being actively carried on by Mr. McLeod, J. H. Gen. P. McLeod, C.M.G., D.S.O., Calgary, who has accepted the position of campaign director for the province.

JEWELRY! Does It Possit?

The component parts of Milburn's heart and Nerve Pills are indicated to do away with palpitation and other heart-weaknesses and thus strengthen both the heart and nerves.

My N. N. Ganshler, Tilbury, Ont., writes—"During 25 years past I was greatly troubled with palpitation of the heart, and sometimes so much so that those around me thought I would die at any moment, being so much weakened by the sharpness of the palpitation which would last sometimes up to three hours. I had the doctor who kept me taking his medicine to overcome the disease, but to no effect. There was no change at all for the better.

Two years ago a friend advised me to use Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills. I began to use them at once, and at the second box I began to feel some relief, as I continued to use them according to directions, and now I am perfectly well. Before using the pills, I never weighed 100 pounds, now I weigh 117, and feel as if I were young although I am over 60 years of age.

Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills are sold in boxes at all dealers, or mailed direct on receipt of price by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

Twenty years of her married life, and half as many more of her widowhood, Mary Mahoney had spent in the little brown house.

Mary was of the type called "Motherly." She "ran" in to the neighbors, and "watched" with the sick. She borrowed on occasion, and lent freely. She quieted the cry of the new-born and closed the eyes of the dead.

Mary's sons and daughters had died years ago. In the little brown house now with her were a widowed cousin, Mrs. Mary Ware, and a bachelor nephew, John Tibbets, both of whom lived in stores a few blocks away. They paid her for their board and rooms.

With herself and her work Mary Mahoney was more than content.

"There ain't anything better I'd ask to do than what I'm doing," she would declare some times; "only—well, I'd like one of them photographs what talks and sings to ye. 'Twould be so company-like and cheery for us, a-settin' here evenin's so quiet, as we do."

And it was to this house and to this woman that there had come now the announcement of a legacy of forty thousand dollars. When the lawyer had come, Mary Mahoney fell back in her chair and fanned herself as if the month were August instead of March. "Sakes alive, Mary Ditt! Won't ye think of that now! Forty thousand dollars—and to me!"

Mary Ware had been christened Ditt long ago by the family to distinguish her from her cousin; they had each been Mary Tibbets before marriage.

"Not that I can guess what I'll be wantin' of all that money," resumed Mary Mahoney, with a frown, "wid'—brightenin'—we can have that photograph now!"

The thin-faced, watery-eyed little woman opposite suddenly found her voice. "Photograph!" she snapped. "Mary Tibbets Mahoney, I should like to know if you think that's all that forty thousand dollars will buy?"

The other's countenance relaxed in a deprecating smile. "Why, no, I s'pose not," she admitted; "but you see I thought of a photograph 'cause that's all I've really needin'."

"Really needin'! As if your whole starved life weren't just cryin' out for a picture!"

A painful red flew to Mary Mahoney's cheek. "Why, Mary Ditt, you know I ain't starved a bit. I'm surd—I don't you have—have enough to eat—here with me?"

Mary Ditt laughed and threw up her hands despairingly. "Of course I do, dear! You don't understand. It's you life, your soul, not your body that's starved. Now you can go to pieces and see things. You can read too. You'll have time; don't you see? And you can have nice things round you to look at and live with."

The voice broke, with longing.

"Sho! Now, as I will," murmured Mrs. Mahoney. "I hadn't thought of it that way." She paused and gazed soberly at the storm raging outside the window. Suddenly her face lighted up. "Say, Mary," she exclaimed, "I'm goin' to get that photograph right away. As long as I know that the money is comin', I don't matter if I spend some of mine that's in the stockin', does it?"

"No, of course not," agreed Mary Ditt brightly; but she sighted a little as she rose to her feet and prepared to return to her work for the afternoon.

There was not much except the fortune talked of in the brown house during the days that followed—the wonderful fortune that the almost forgotten Uncle Simon had left Mary Mahoney. Seeing how very desirable the fortune was in the eyes of her friends and neighbors, the heiress herself gradually began to regard it with more interest. The lawyer had said that there were a few preliminaries concerning other bequests and so forth, to be arranged before the estate could be settled; then she would be asked to come and get her inheritance. Meanwhile he should be very glad to forward for her use, as soon as possible, a check for a thousand dollars.

Even before the lawyer's check arrived, Mary Mahoney was enjoying the situation immensely. She liked the new deference paid to her, and she never tired of talking about the bequest, the man who made it, and the strangeness of it all. With the "stocking money" she had indulged in various extravagances, as she called them; she had bought peasanteries, and pink and white popovers, and wintergreen lozenges; she had purchased a string of green beads for her neck, and a lace tie with faded roses; she had treated Mary Ditt to several trolley-car rides, and to three or four motion picture shows. The photograph she had bought at once.

When the check came, Mary eyed it doubtfully. She was not used to checks. "You don't mean that it's there on that paper—a whole thousand dollars!" she demanded of her cousin.

"No, no," said Mary Ware. "It means that the money is in the bank waiting for you; don't you remember? The lawyer told you—and all you've got to do is to present this and you'll get it. This is a check. Father used to have lots of them, and he told me that I should have them some day—when I was sixteen he would put some money in the bank for me to have for my own. And then—he died; and that ended—everything."

"Yes, I know. Poor lamb!" nodded Mary Mahoney in quick sympathy. "And it's been hard for you—harder's it ever been for me—to work as we've had to. I—I wish this money had come to you instead of me, now, I say I do! I didn't think Uncle Simon used to like me overwell when I knew him as a girl; and I'm sure I didn't like him—shame be to me to say it now, after all he's done for me."

"I know; he was queer, but I always liked him," murmured Mary Ware, with her eyes dreamily turned away. "Mary's because he was no queer that I did like him; I don't know."

There was a moment's silence; then impulsively Mary Mahoney cried, "Look ahead, I'll give ye half that money, I vow I will. You ought to have it too!"

Mary Ware sprang to her feet. "As if you could! You're a good girl, but I wanted me to have it, he'd have given it to me himself."

"But I'll give it to ye, myself," argued the other. "Surely you'd take it from me!"

Mary Ditt shook her head. "No, I wouldn't, I couldn't." Then she turned and stumbled blindly from the room, leaving Mary Mahoney to question her own eyes.

The check proved to be a troublesome burden. Its owner did not know where to keep it. She hid it in various places in the old stocking, in the family Bible, in the china teapot. Then she tried it under the braided rug on the front room; at last she put it in the pocket of the gown she was wearing.

"But Cousin Mary," remonstrated Mary Ditt one day, "you don't need to worry so. What's the use of carrying any good without your money on the back?"

"I know; course 'tis silly of me," admitted Mary Mahoney. "But only think what that little slip of paper means—a whole thousand dollars!"

It was a neighbor who forced matters to a climax. When Mary Ware came home from work one night she found her cousin pacing the room, obviously in great excitement.

"Look ahead," Mary Mahoney cried. "Bill Kneeland is tellin' me that if I just think, Mary Ditt—just a whole thousand of my dollars! And can't do a thing to help it till tomorrow; and it may be blowin' up now—this minute. Mary Ditt, why don't you say somethin'?"

Obviously Mary Ditt tried to say something, but her words failed to comfort. When John Tibbets came out, he too tried to say something, but in vain. Mary Mahoney neither slept that night nor left her family sleep; and at the earliest possible moment the next morning she started for the bank, not far away, where she had been told she could get the money.

The paying teller greeted her anxious questioning with a smile. There was no need of identification. As a boy he had sat on Mary Mahoney's knee, and he had already heard of the check. He looked at it amiably. "That's good, right?" he answered. "Now just sign your name on the back here, please, exactly as it's written—Mary Tibbets Mahoney."

It was all so simple that Mary Tibbets could not quite believe that the business was finished when she finally had the money in her hands.

"And now what are you going to do with it?" the teller asked. "Hadin' you better let us keep the money of it here for you?"

Mary shook her head. "I'm thinkin' I'd better have it where I can put my fingers on it any minute."

"All right; but look out, Mary, that no one else gets his fingers on it too. As if Mary Mahoney needed a watch dog like that! With both hands clutched about her shopping bag, and out upon the street. Like some giddy thing afraid to meet her fellow man, she skulked home by a back street, and crept into the house. In her tiny bedroom she locked the door, looked under the bag and into the pocket, and drew down the shades. Then treacherously she drew the money from her bag and gazed at it. All one thousand dollars—and all her own. How crisp and clean the bills were, and how pretty! And besides all these, there were to be—Dowdall on the parson tale and jumped on the table and upset an empty flower pot. Upstairs Mary Mahoney thrust the money into her bag, leaped to her feet and stood trembling. (Concluded on page 6)

MILLET

We are delighted to know that A. P. Mitchell, our popular mayor, is around again, his office appearing like a hive of bees in June.

Harold Wood was confined to the house with a severe attack of pneumonia. It is hoped that a speedy recovery will be made.

Rev. A. L. Shihald conducted the services on Sunday for the pastor, and his message was appreciatively received by a large congregation in the Millet Methodist church.

While Rev. Hughton was on his way to Chacewater Presbyterian church with Mr. Coote, two fine mallard ducks made their first appearance, announcing the surety of spring.

BERRY—POLARD

A very pretty wedding took place at Holy Trinity church at one o'clock on Friday, April 8th, when Helen Bertha Polard, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Polard, of "Robey," Laneshire, England, was united in marriage to Mr. Douglas Lawrence Berry, a prosperous young farmer of Millet. The bride and bridesmaids were unattended. Only immediate friends were present at the ceremony. Mr. Berry was a comrade-in-arms of Rev. Canon Carruthers, who officiated at his wedding, both being members of the famous Fort Garry Horse regiment. Four brothers of Mr. Berry also served at the front, one being killed on the Somme. They belong to the well-known Berry family of Croydon, England.

GWYNNE

Gwynne, April 11, 1921.

The concert held in the hall on Friday evening was well attended in spite of the bad roads. After the program lunch was served by the U.S.W.A. ladies, and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing.

Mrs. A. P. Moan and children spent the weekend with relatives here.

Some excitement was aroused in the village the other day when G. Shanty's team became frightened and bolted over the Gwynne hill. After turning the contents out on the ground, the team ran to a near brush pile, where they got hung up till the owner arrived on the scene.

Mrs. Cole and Mrs. Geo. Beave were visitors at Wetaskiwin April 12th.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of our dear daughter, Margaret E. Munro, who died March 3rd, 1921.

Oh, Margaret, just one month ago Thy voice was hushed,
And on thy pale and peaceful face Is resting death's cold chill;
Thy hands are clasped upon thy breast.

And we have kissed thy marble brow,
And in our aching hearts we know We have no Margaret now.

But, Margaret dear, the fairest flowers Are first to fall,
The sweetest first to fade;

The dearest, fondlest loved by all Within the grave is laid.

The wreaths we placed upon your grave May wither and decay,
But the love for her who sleeps beneath Shall never fade away.

Inserted by her parents,
Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Craig.

THE TEACHERS' STRIKE SITUATION

Students attending grades 7 and 8 were expected to put in an appearance yesterday morning. Superintendent Carpenter announced that enough teachers were available to re-open classes. As sufficient teachers present themselves, the whole of the high school system will be reopened, although the commercial, art, and technical classes will be left to the last.

The teachers are holding meetings each afternoon at the labor hall, and so far none have fallen out from their ranks to resume their old places. Their chairs are open for them if they like to return, this being understood from the remarks made by Trustee Douglas at the board meeting on Monday, a statement agreed with by the remainder of the board.

In conversation with the teachers Tuesday evening, after their meeting it was stated that no fresh developments had occurred from their point of view. Messages of sympathy were being received from other teachers organizations.

In regard to the action of the board in securing a temporary staff, the teachers are not unduly excited over the matter, it being remarked that it is impossible for such a staff to give efficient service, inasmuch as cannot jump back into high school teaching and give any sort of satisfaction after having been out of educational work for a number of years.

Apert, however, from what action the board may have taken for filling their places, the teachers are anxious to discuss and negotiate with the trustees. "It is recognized" that the more delay that occurs before the parties meet, the wider will grow the breach between them.

Again quoting the remarks made by Trustee Douglas at the board meeting on Monday, and also agreed with by the remainder of the trustees, the board is not averse to meeting the teachers, so that it should be possible for a conference to be arranged before long. It is believed that the board would accede to a request along such lines.

So far no action has been taken by the Trades and Labor council, or the other labor unions in support of the teachers, but who can realize that in their officials and heads are discussing the situation.

Even if the Trades and Labor council does not definitely place itself to back the teachers, which would mean the application of all labor resources to carrying out the fight on an issue, it is possible that a committee may be selected from among labor heads who would assist the teachers in placing their case before the school board.

RAILWAY RATES
FIXED FOR CANADA
BY U.S. WAGE AWARD

Victoria, April 12.—Solution of Canada's railway problem can be found only in a business discussion between business men who can realize the needs and business representatives of employees. Hon. F. B. Carvell told the Canadian club yesterday. He believed the solution would come in a year or two and expressed the hope that before long railway matters in the dominion would be handled by Canadians.

Defending discussion of railway problems while travelling in his official capacity, the chairman said the board's award of increased freight rates had evoked criticism.

"Consequently," he said, "we are going to give the public the truth about the situation."

The McAdoo award, he said, was given to Canadian railway workers, not because it affected Canada, but because "rascals gentlemen from the States" had journeyed up to Canada and threatened that they would call a strike in this country if the award was not given to Canadian workers.

It was difficult to imagine, he thought, anything more humiliating than that American labor negotiators should be able to hold a pistol to our heads.

The McAdoo award added more than $40,000,000 a year to Canada's railway expenditures. The railway commission was forced to grant increased freight rates to prevent the Canadian National railways from going to the wall. It had been suggested that the Canadian Pacific railway should have paid the extra wages out of its reserve. It was proved, however, that if they did this would have been no reserve in four years, and the Canadian Pacific railway would be in the same position as the Canadian National and Grand Trunk railways today.

The hen that doesn't cackle has no egg to advertise.

RAILWAYMEN

HAVE DECIDED TO

WALK OUT

London, April 12.—Great Britain's "Triple Alliance of Labor" will call its members from their posts at 10 o'clock Friday night. It was announced here this morning at 11 o'clock.

This decision follows the inability of the National Miners' Federation to reach an agreement with the mine owners and the government for the settlement of the miners' strike which began April 1.

The Triple Alliance is made up of the National Amalgamated Federation, having a membership of 800,000; the National Union of Railwaymen with 300,000 members, and the National Federation of Transport Workers, which numbers as its members a large number of unions which have a membership of close to 300,000.

It has been estimated that if the alliance should call a strike that it would be nearly 4,000,000 persons idle in Great Britain as a result.

The decision to strike was reached unanimously by the transport workers and railwaymen, J. H. Thomas, secretary of the railwaymen's organization, said after this morning's meeting.

"The walkout," he declared, "will take place at 10 o'clock Friday evening. Many other unions have sent applications to join the strike and these are being considered."

WHY WOMEN'S MAN-

NERS ARE LAX

(By Cicely Hamilton, Novelist-Dramatist, in London Weekly Dispatch)

In a divorce case during the week the presiding judge remarked on the difficulty of deciding in these days between actual misconduct and the foolishness that outwardly resembles it. This is due, as he pointed out, to a widespread change in manners—a lessening of restraint, a disregard of appearances which makes it possible for the talk and bearing of a young woman who is merely high-spirited or careless to resemble the talk and bearing of one who transgresses without shame.

The difficulty, obviously, is a real one, where the girl who is only incautious and the woman who is vicious have to all appearances, the same code and behave in the same fashion. It requires a special and subtle knowledge of the two characters to be sure of the motive that underlies their common actions. When certain things are not done by honest men it is easy to detect a knave; but when honest men take to the manners of knaves the task of detection is difficult.

Calgary, April 8.—The Duke and Duchess of Devonshire will make Calgary their headquarters for the next week, while awaiting the arrival of Lord and Lady Harrington and Lady Maude Macintosh, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess, who are coming over from England. In the meantime the vice-regal party will pay informal visits to Drumheller, Bassano and Brooks, and will also visit the 11th ranch of George Lord and the Prince of Wales ranch near Calgary.

The vice-regal party is to spend the intervening time as quietly as possible.

VIMY DAY

Four years ago last Monday, on Easter Monday, April 9, 1917, the battle of Vimy Ridge was won. At home in Canada and in the British Isles people were preparing on April 8 for the peaceful celebration of Easter Monday, while across in Flanders, elaborate preparations were being made to take care of the thousands of wounded and dying who would fall when the great advance was made. At 6:30 o'clock on Monday morning artillery fire was concentrated on the German lines and as the barrage lifted the Canadian West front to capture what had been considered one of the most impregnable positions held by the enemy.

All watches had been synchronized so that timing of all units would be simultaneous and within the next two hours thousands of homes were bereaved, thousands of men paid the last sacrifice to the Empire. In the van of this gigantic military achievement were Alberta infantry battalions and men of the 9th Field Ambulance. In incredible time the heights of Vimy were captured and the battle won. It was the crowning achievement of the Canadian army and has been given the name of Vimy in the history of the British Empire.

Soon the cables from the old land brought the tidings. Grief and pride thrilled throughout the Dominion. By sacrificing their lives and blood the soldier-citizens of Canada had won for her a place among the nations of the world. Not without suffering or anguish was that great step forward won. Monday morning, four years since the terrible struggle, many recalled the words, "Greater love hath no man than this, that he lay down his life for another."

There will be no strike of Calgary school teachers this year. Such was the decision of the teachers at the meeting Wednesday evening. The decision was by no means unanimous. After the vote was taken, one high school teacher valiantly strove to have the vote made unanimous, but while those opposed to the resolution signified their intention to abide wholly by the decisions of the majority, they firmly refused to alter their vote.

LONG TREK OF AN AIREDALE

(Letter of John McLennan, Edmonton, in "Terry Digger")

T. A. Fox, an architect, Vancouver, B.C., owns an Airedale dog, and in the spring of 1919 he sent it by express over the Canadian National Railway to a brother-in-law, Thomas Paton, at Adressa, a station on the Grand Trunk Pacific railway, sixteen miles east of Edmonton, Alta., at the same time notifying Mr. Paton of the shipment. Express charges were prepaid, as well as a sum of money and food given messenger to care for the dog, to destination. After waiting for some time and no dog arriving, Mr. Paton notified Mr. Fox of the non-arrival of "Buster." Mr. Fox made enquiry of the railway company and the express company produced a receipt from the Grand Trunk Pacific railway showing that the dog was delivered to the latter company at Edmonton, but had no record of how it was disposed of. Mr. Paton stated on their line has no station agent, and the presumption is that the dog was put out at the station in the hope that Mr. Paton would come and claim him. This, however, is only conjecture, as Mr. Paton never received the dog and he was given up for lost.

"Buster" was not of sufficient value to make much fuss about him and the matter was allowed to drop.

At about six weeks time Buster arrived at his home in Vancouver, emaciated, tired and footsore. The distance from Vancouver to Edmonton is 775 miles on the Canadian National and Adressa is 16 miles east of Edmonton on another line. From Edmonton to Vancouver there is no travelled road except the railroad track, which crosses through and over three chains of mountains, two-thirds of the distance without habitation except the railroad section houses, and at long intervals small stations, many of them without a single inhabitant.

Having in mind that there are 54 miles of railroad converging in Edmonton and that his road was through mountains, uninhabited for the most part, not only the feat of finding his way marvellous, but it is equally strange how he subsisted on the way.

J. A. Brown arrived home on Monday from a business trip to Ontario.

Honestly now I could you get for 60c, any other prescription which would give the same almost perfect relief and satisfaction than a box of Zan-Itak does? Zan-Itak is a combination of powerful, healing, herbal extracts, so refined and compounded that wherever there is any kind of soreness of the flesh, or discoloration or abnormal condition (such as inflammation, infection, or blood poisoning) it almost immediately soothes and heals. It stops bleeding. It is highly antiseptic and kills germs. It is suitable also for the hardened skin of the worker or the tender sensitive skin of a child.
Zan-Itak is 100% pure herbal medicine. It contains no animal fat, no mineral impurity. It cannot go rancid.
For seven years we have used Zan-Itak in our homes" writes L. B. Anderson, of 1407, E. 22nd, St., Minneapolis. "We simply could not get along without it. Whenever any of my children, my wife or I, happen in accident, we promptly apply Zan-Itak. It saves many a doctor's bill."

EDMONTON INVEN- TION MEANS SAVING IN GRAIN INDUSTRY

A new grain stoker, the product of two years' research work by P. J. McCann, will soon be on the market in Western Canada, and from the satisfactory tests performed by the machine it is apparent that at least a really workable stoker has been invented; a machine which will do the work and do it properly.

The new stoker has already been tried out under actual working conditions on the field and has proven as unqualified success.

The stoker is a light machine capable of being driven by one-half horse power, and is attached to the binder by means of three light rods, the sheaves from the binder being transferred direct to the platform on the stoker.

The shaft on leaving the binder in a horizontal position, is turned up on end by a device on the stoker, while the instant the bottom of the shaft touches the platform of the stoker, the automatic mechanism commences to operate, alternate sheaves being pulled down each side of the machine to be assembled on the dropping platform at the rear.

Each stoke is held firmly in place by means of a platform, which is positioned on the rear table, so that when the platform drops, the sheaves are spread out at the bottoms while the top incline inwardly, while the end sheaves are inclined towards the center. There are two types of machines being made, however, the larger size carrying ten sheaves and depositing them in circular form, so that the individual tines of the fan can be consisted in relation to whatever form of stoke he prefers.

The larger machine has a device which might well be described as wonderful; this being a mechanical hand which when thrust into the group of sheaves prior to dumping, regulates the distance of the various tines by a nicely hinged possible by human means.

The frame of the machine is built of light angle iron, with two light drive wheels, the rear end being carried on a small truck. Both sides of the stoker operate independently of one another, so that in turning corners, etc., one side can be thrown out of gear while the other continues to run. Once the sheaves reach the stoker, the sheaves are entirely closed by the mechanism, which accounts for the fact that there is no shedding of grain which might occur if they were treated in a horizontal manner, while the grain is in a circle through which there is a hole through which the grain does away with the necessity for any kind of tying, or further attention.

After the sheaves are deposited on the ground the machine travels about eight feet before the next load is ready, the tipping being automatic, in that when the shaft reaches the stoker the stoke already in position reach the ground without any attention from the driver of the binder. The mechanism is so simple, there are no complicated parts to get out of order, and the new invention possesses all the hall-marks of a rational utilization of genius. It is entirely different in principle from any invention hitherto evolved along this line, and it is quite apparent that it should go far to do away with harvesting troubles in the west, and supply the one mechanical appliance which the grain raiser requires most of all.

The machine weighs but 140 pounds, while the fact that its position in relation to the binder equalizes the side draft which has hitherto been a detriment to the shoulders of farm horses, is a distinct point in its favor, and it is guaranteed to take care of all the grain which comes from the binder, doing away altogether with the former train of men who followed the machine.

The head office of the company is located in Edmonton, where a big stock of the new machine will be kept on hand to meet the demand which is sure to arise, when the grain growers of the west realize that the invention opens to agriculture in western Canada.

Without comment, Premier Charles Stewart on Friday afternoon laid on the table of the legislature petitions of the Alberta Moderation League bearing some 71,000 signatures. The petitions ask the government to abolish the system of dispensing liquor by means of physicians' prescriptions and drug stores, and to take direct charge of liquor sales, including light wines and beer. The petitions were handed to the legislature, as they were addressed to that body. Although approved, the signed petitions are still being sent in to the premier by mail, those at hand were brought in to the house Friday in anticipation of a forthcoming announcement of the government's policy on the liquor act.

HARD TIMES

A portrait painter sat in a French cafe sipping his wine. His small bottle was finished and he was about to order more when his eyes rested on a newspaper lying near him. He read the headlines "Hard Times are Coming." "Hard times," he said, "we must economize," so instead of calling for another bottle he called for his bill.

The landlord, knowing the artist's habits, surprised that the order for the second bottle was not given, asked the customer and said, "Not good? Is it not good?"

"Excellent," said the artist, "but hard times are coming and I must economize."

"Hard times," said the landlord, and he sat down to his head. Then he called for his bill. "That new silk dress you ordered," he said, "must make cotton do. The artist tells me hard times are coming. We must economize. Cancel your order and buy something cheaper."

When the landlord's wife cancelled her order she told the dressmaker what her husband had said.

"I must prepare for hard times," she said. "Hard times are coming," her husband and the artist say so."

"Hard times," said the dressmaker. Hard times are coming. This is no time to be careless. These improvements I intended to make must wait."

He put on his hat and crossed the street to the builder with whom he had planned additions to his new house.

"The changes I planned must wait," he said. "Do not proceed with the work. Hard times are coming. We must economize. When conditions improve I will call you in, but I cannot wait in the face of hard times."

When the dressmaker left the building or sat down and wrote a letter: "My dearest friend, I must postpone writing for my picture. We are going to have hard times and I think it best to wait until things have settled before indulging in this expense. Hard times, you know, must be regarded."

When the artist received the letter he went to the cafe. He ordered a small bottle—just enough, he said, to soothe him. Staring at him from near by was the newspaper he had seen two days before. He picked it up, scanned it more closely, and found that it was two years old.

HOSPITAL MAN PRAISES TANLAC

FEELS LIKE IT GAVE HIM NEW LEASE ON LIFE, DECLARES
THOMAS W. WHITE

"Tanlac has given me a new lease on life and I'm feeling just fine," said Thomas W. White, of 1560 Boucher St., Victoria, B.C. Mr. White was overcast for about two years with a medical career, and is now employed at the Jubilee hospital in Victoria.

"About two years ago my appetite failed and I was suffering from all kinds of pains. My appetite was so poor that I ate little more than enough to keep me on my feet, and some days I hardly tasted anything at all. At times even the sight of food would nauseate me, and whenever I did eat a little something it caused a heavy depressed feeling in my stomach. I often had severe headaches and dizzy spells."

"There was such a terrible pain in the small of my back that many a night I didn't sleep more than two hours, and when I would get up in the morning I could scarcely move about, or hardly stoop over to lace my shoes. I was so miserable I never felt like doing my work, and many a time it seemed like I would simply have to give up altogether."

"When a friend told me of the remarkable good Tanlac had done him I started taking it myself and I'm now feeling just fine in every way. I have an excellent appetite and eat just anything and everything I want at any time and it doesn't trouble me a bit."

"I haven't had a headache since I started on the very first bottle, and that awful pain has entirely disappeared from my back. I sleep like a log every night and get up in the morning feeling refreshed and ready for a good day's work. I owe my present good health to Tanlac, and I'm mighty thankful for all it's done for me."

COUNTRY MERCHANTS IN SOME DISTRICTS NEAR DANGER LINE

A half-dozen or so business failures are said to be impending in the course of the next two months. Among them will be a few involving large liabilities but in most cases they are quieted where they have not been able to meet their obligations maturing this spring.

For the first three months of the year the total list of assignments in the district north of Red Deer, including the city of Edmonton, number only eleven, which is regarded in business circles as a highly creditable showing, particularly in view of the fact that none of the failures were of large proportions.

It is stated, however, that this good record is hardly likely to be maintained for the next quarter. A considerable number of country merchants who have been able to carry through the winter are now on the verge of the danger line, and it is feared that after present extensions of time have expired several of them will be compelled to assign. The reason in most cases is said to be the losses incurred through falling prices and the heavy burden of carrying farmers, who in turn have been unable to pay their accounts, because of the low prices received for their produce.

THE CREAMERIES OF ALBERTA

"Thirty-four million dollars' worth of dairy products were manufactured in Alberta last year, according to an estimate from the dairy commission of the province. Approximately seventy-five per cent of this was made in Northern Alberta and fifty per cent in Edmonton city, and in the nature of the topography of the province Northern Alberta is likely to remain the larger producing area so far as dairy products are concerned.

There are 52 creameries operating and from these 12,150,000 pounds of butter were made at an average price per pound of 64c. The cheese production was 44,654 pounds, made by 7 factories and valued at $128,839.
